President's Message,
Gerry Boaz, CGFM, CPA

Our first meeting of the new program year was a huge success. The September 7 meeting provided many members the opportunity to get others excited about AGA. The result of our members' efforts brought in over 30 guests to the meeting. With the large number of members and guests present at the first meeting, this provides us with a great chance to educate others about aspects of our Chapter's mission, vision, and values. Last month I focused on leadership. This month's message focuses on the value of service to our members, potential members, and mankind in general.

I cannot begin a message about service without highlighting the efforts of our Community Service committee. Their efforts have provided us with several opportunities for donating our time and money. Some of these opportunities include the Project Pencil school supplies drive, Second Harvest Food Bank's Emergency Food Box Program, Voluntary Income Tax Assistance (VITA), National Public Television (NPT) pledge drive, Little Angels, Little Soldiers, Music City Marathon, and Prevention of Unwanted Pets (PUP). A few of these voluntary efforts are already underway and provide a great chance for us to support worthy causes and, most importantly, those in need.

The Susan G. Komen
Breast Cancer Foundation

As I have mentioned before, we have many talented members in the Nashville Chapter. I encourage each of you to use your talents to serve the membership in any way you feel comfortable. For instance, many opportunities still exist for you to serve on a Chapter committee. If you do not know which committee to serve on, visit the Nashville AGA website and review our strategic plan to get an idea of each committee's purpose and to determine which committee is the best fit for you. Becoming actively involved in Chapter activities is the best way to obtain the most benefits from AGA membership. An added bonus is getting to work or network with other talented, professional individuals within the Chapter.

Above all else, we must realize that serving others by volunteering our time and money makes us recognize that life's fulfillment goes well beyond self-indulgence or the "me-me-me attitude." Everyone at some point in life begins to understand that only focusing on ourselves misses the opportunities to serve and help others who truly are in need. We as Americans often show our many strengths as a nation when we are faced with tragedy. However, many people volunteer in numerous ways where publicity is unavailable and not sought after. What typically happens, as we saw with the terrorist attacks of 9/11 and with Hurricane Katrina, is that many individuals volunteered their time, money, and talents to help others. No one had a political agenda. It was simply the American people, as usual, showing their heartfelt compassion for fellow neighbors, friends, and countrymen. Helping others and experiencing someone else's joy typically brings more satisfaction and personal development than if we think of ourselves first. Throughout history societies have flourished when its citizens helped those in most need. This does not mean pity; it means charity, compassion, and love for one another. Thus, it is better to give than receive as the old adage goes. Often times, volunteerism or service might only require a smile, complimenting someone, helping others feel better about themselves by focusing on the good and positive, instead of tearing someone down. Smiles cost nothing but have a huge impact on someone's day. Smiling is contagious; try it every day.

"If I can help somebody as I pass along, if I can cheer somebody with a word or song, if I can show somebody he's traveling wrong, then my living will not be in vain."

Project Pencil Supply Drive

The Community Service Committee is eager and excited to begin AGA's 2006-2007 year. We are sending out a list of items that we will be collecting this year. Along with each item you will notice a designated number; these are Project Pencil's suggested amounts to give each teacher. In the past we have given the items to the principal to hand out as needed per student. This year Project Pencil is requesting that we give them to each teacher. Our goal is to give each teacher at Alex Green Elementary the amount requested. Collection will continue until the October 2006 AGA luncheon.

Items can be dropped off at any time before the October 2006 AGA luncheon at the designated drop off sites listed below. They will also be accepted at the luncheons.

We are in need of individuals who are willing to maintain a drop box. If anyone is interested contact Tammy Fruscione, 615-747-5221 or e-mail her at tammy.fruscione@state.tn.us.

News from National

On Tracking of Pensions, No Consensus

The disclosure that New York City uses two different methods to gauge its pension funds—one showing they are fully funded, and another showing a $49 billion deficit—has heaped fuel on a long-running debate over how to value pensions. The debate, being waged among actuaries, accountants and economists, is more than theoretical. Last week The New York Times reported that while officials usually describe New York City's pension plans as close to fully funded, an alternate calculation in the back of the plans' annual reports shows a $49 billion shortfall. If the alternate calculation has merit, the city will probably be forced to raise taxes or cut services at some point, to provide all the money promised to its retirees. The question of which method is more reliable has nationwide implications. New York City's chief actuary, Robert C. North, is thought to be the only public pension official in the country to have done the second pension calculation—which is more like the way a bank might account for its money. If actuaries for the many other towns and states with pension plans were to follow suit, big deficits would probably start popping up from coast to coast. —Mary Williams Walsh and Michael Cooper, The New York Times. To read the entire story visit <http://www.agacgfm.org/publications/agatoday/articles/090506/pensions.aspx>

U.S. Entities Lose Estimated $652 Billion to Fraud

According to the 2006 Report to the Nation on Occupational Fraud and Abuse, Certified Fraud Examiners (CFEs) estimate that the typical organization loses 5 percent of its annual revenues to fraud. When applied to the estimated 2006 U.S. Gross Domestic Product, that translates to $652 billion lost to fraud. Frauds in the study caused a median loss of $159,000 and took 18 months to detect. Most of the frauds in the study involved either the accounting department (30 percent) or upper management (20 percent). The study also discussed the effectiveness of confidential fraud hotlines: "Occupational frauds are more likely to be detected by a tip than by other means such as internal audits, external audits or internal controls." —Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. Certification! It's Fantastic.

by Gerry Boaz, CGFM, CPA

March 2006 and March 2005. Do these dates conjure up any memories? If that memory is forgetting an anniversary or birthday, you would be incorrect. However, they have everything to do with Governor Bredesen and the state legislature proclaiming March as Certified Government Financial Manager (CGFM) month. In addition, Mayor Purcell proclaimed March 2006 as CGFM month. Why is the proclamation important? Several reasons come to mind.

First, the tone at the top from the government's highest levels of management must demonstrate that a qualified, professional workforce is important to management. This message also needs to be conveyed to the employees. The proclamation process clearly lets the employees know that management takes their professional development and initiative to become certified seriously. Another positive to this process is the fact that the employees who may have no idea what AGA and the CGFM are will begin asking questions about the organization and designation. This is the beginning phase of enhancing professional development.

Second, the proclamation paves the way for a multi-faceted approach in educating the public, employers, employees, and others about the CGFM. For instance, aggressively marketing the value of the CGFM to governmental employers and the public raises awareness of the designation and drives curiosity. Furthermore, employers need to be encouraged to use the CGFM among qualifications for employment and promotion. Attaining the CGFM designation provides the recipient with AGA's Code of Ethics as both a standard of behavior to aspire to and a guide for making ethical decisions. In addition, continuing professional education (CPE) is required to ensure the competency of the certificate holder. These strategies will help promote the CGFM designation by marketing the service mark, by assisting potential candidates in attaining certification, and by supporting current CGFMs.

This certainly is not an easy task in a well-established Chapter such as ours with a majority of its membership already having obtained the designation. The CGFM committee welcomed the challenge, though, and determined that a long-term strategy was warranted. By focusing on the governmental and private sector entities not well-represented in our Chapter while continuing to serve our existing members, we can increase our AGA chapter membership and also provide potential members with the skill sets necessary to meet the challenges of an ever-changing workforce. Furthermore, by educating the commissioners, directors, and other leaders in state, local, and federal leadership positions about the benefits of AGA and especially the CGFM, we are able to demonstrate how the CGFM benefits the employer and the employee. This process becomes a top-down and bottom-up approach because employees will begin asking upper management why they are not encouraged and compensated for advancing their professional development through attaining the CGFM designation.

Finally, the global workforce is ever-changing in that different skill-sets are required today that were not even dreamed about 25 years ago. Therefore, one must ask the question, "If I have the same educational credentials as someone else interviewing for the same job but the other person has a designation relevant to the government environment, will I get the job?" Chances are with everything else being equal, you will not. The CGFM designation demonstrates to potential employers that you take your career and professional development seriously, as well as maintaining a high standard for government accountability and performance. Can the CGFM convey all of these characteristics or elements? In short, it can, but it does require effort. Never underestimate the power of personal and professional development and the confidence that it can produce.

You might be saying to yourself, "Self, I am interested in becoming certified. But, what are the requirements for becoming certified?" The pathway to certification is as simple as the three E's: E+E+E (See Exhibit 1.).

Exhibit 1: The CGFM Formula

The first step relates to education. A Bachelor's degree with 24 credit hours of study in accounting, auditing, budgeting, economics and related financial management courses is required. Next, obtain two years of professional-level government financial management experience. Finally, you must pass three examinations in a three-year eligibility period. You can begin taking the examinations and pass all three any time after receiving your degree, but you must meet the experience requirement before you are awarded your certification. Once you become certified you will need to maintain your certification by adhering to the AGA Code of Ethics, obtaining 80 CPE hours every two years, and paying your annual renewal fee.

Hear ye! Hear ye! Are you interested in the CGFM Certification? The National AGA office intends again to offer a special Intensive Review Course and the ability to take the CGFM examinations at the June 2007 National Professional Development Conference (PDC) here in Nashville.

Dianne McKay thanked everyone for their hard work this year and stated that this program year had been very successful. She started her presidency with the goal of providing quality educational opportunities and giving back to the members as much as possible to encourage active membership. She felt this year was successful in accomplishing those goals. She also thanked all those that worked on the Regional PDC and those that served on the Executive Committee and as Committee Chairs. She passed the gavel to Gerry Boaz as the Chapter President for the next program year.

Gerry stated his priorities for the upcoming program year as expanding membership, addressing membership needs, placing more emphasis on certifications, increasing educational opportunities available to members, and involvement in community service efforts.

Ron Anderson gave the answer to the puzzle and then the meeting was adjourned.

The National Office had asked for specific committee plans to be submitted.

Plans were submitted to the National Office, the Regional Vice President, and the Senior Vice President for Regional Services on August 30, 2006, for the following committees: CGFM, Early Careers, Education, Meetings and Program, Membership, and Community Service.

A total of 5,383 points were submitted to National for the first quarter that covers May through July 2006. Committee chairs are reminded to report activity monthly that occurs outside of the newsletter, website, and chapter meetings that qualifies for points. Ann maintains a spreadsheet and wants to update it monthly. For any August activity please have the information to her by Thursday, September 7, 2006.

Annual Report

Gerry Boaz reported that the Annual Report should be ready by the October meeting.

Committee Reports

Program

Robbie Hunter reported that the speaker for the September meeting is Beth Curley, Nashville Public Television CEO and President. Robbie will introduce Ms. Curley during the September meeting. The committee has lined up someone from the Komen Center for the October meeting. They are still collecting information regarding the social event.

Finance

Suzanne Smotherman reported that she sent the history report to the prior year's officers and committee chairs for confirmation. The report must be submitted to National by September 30, 2006, thus any changes need to be in to her by September 11, 2006.

Education

Mary Anne Queen reported that the committee is receiving internet registrations for the Business Tax Seminars. The first one is to be held in the Memphis area on October 18, 2006, at the Bartlett Performing Arts Center, and the next seminar is in Nashville on October 25, 2006, at the Willis Conference Center. Continuing Professional Education Program has been submitted to National. The Winter Seminar will be held on January 10, 2006 and January 11, 2006, at Nashville State Community College. The committee is currently working on a Breakfast CPE opportunity to be held in November. Mary Anne will be making an announcement at the September meeting.

Early Careers

Georgia Varble provided information and paperwork for the library. A facility reservation for Thursday, February 22, 2007, has been submitted. Additional work that was dependent on a date can now proceed. The list of higher learning faculty and staff will be verified. A list of employer contacts will be compiled. There is a career fair at the Tennessee State Fairgrounds on February 13, 2007. Clare believed that AGA would be welcome and passed along the name of Elaine Driver as a contact for that project. In addition to the response from the September newsletter article, Michelle will work with Ann Taylor-Tharpe, Elaine Driver, Phil Carr, and others to compile a list of early careers members based on the AGA list and lists of new hires within Metro and the State of Tennessee. There was a preliminary discussion of a social event for early careers members. Additional discussion and planning may occur in the future.

Awards

Gerry Boaz reported that Donna Duarte met with Ann Collett, Ron Queen and himself on September 9, 2006. They looked at the points structure used by Awards for the PDC Drawing and Membership for the renewal incentives. A proposed universal structure was discussed. Nominees are still needed for the Distinguished Local Government Leadership Award and the William R. Snodgrass Distinguished Leadership Award. A spreadsheet for each committee and procedures will be submitted monthly.

Membership

Britt Wood handed out a list of members and a copy of the tentative membership survey was handed out for review. The survey was shortened in order to help receive more responses. It was felt that a longer survey may cause a disinterest in the completion. The surveys will be sent out via email. Any corrections or suggestions on revising the survey need to be brought to Britt Wood or Brian Derrick. Each month the member who sponsors the most new members will receive a goodie bag. In the event of a tie, a drawing will be held. The committee is currently working on giving away a larger prize at the end of the year. Once the prize(s) are confirmed, more details will be given. Members are encouraged to review the suspended list. Brian Derrick will be making an announcement at the September meeting.

An announcement and list of requested items will be prepared for the October Newsletter, and Ray will make an announcement at the October meeting. Tammy Thompson reported that the committee is currently reviewing VITA and will continue to gather information in hopes of maintaining a site in Columbia, TN.

CGFM

Rebecca Barr reported that a meeting between Early Careers, Membership, and Education needs to be held in order to coordinate the activities throughout the year. A part of the meeting is to design a survey instrument to find out why there is a lack of interest in the CGFM.

Meetings and Attendance

Penny Austin reported that the confirmed number of meeting attendees for the September luncheon was 116; of this number 28 are guests. Melvin Jones will be giving the invocation.

Meet Your Chapter Leadership

Ann Collett, CGFM, CPA President -Elect

Ann is currently serving the Chapter as President-elect . She has lived in Nashville most of her life. Ann has been a member of AGA for 21 years, joining the month after she started work at State Audit. She has also been the Director of Internal Audit at Nashville State Tech. She now works as a Financial Oversight Coordinator in the Department of Finance and Administration- Division of Accounts where she has been for six years. She is one of the preparers of the State's Comprehensive Annual Financial Report. Ann has her BBA in Accounting from Lambuth College and her MBA from Tennessee State University.

Ann has served two different terms on the Chapter's Executive Committee as a two-year director. Over the years she has been on the Program, Education, Awards, Membership and Regional PDC committees. She won the Community Service Award last year for her participation in the various Chapter activities. One of her favorites is working the phone banks at Channel 8. She is on the host committees for both the National AGA PDC that will be in Nashville in June 2007 and for the National NASACT conference to be held in Nashville in August 2007.

Ann is currently a member of the improvisational comedy troupe, Improv Nashville(IN). IN performs at various venues in town and you can check out their website at www.improvnashville.com. If you went to the Regional PDC in March, IN was the group that performed at lunch one day. In addition to improvised shows, the troupe is starting work on a Christmas sketch comedy show. For exercise and stress relief Ann is an avid Jazzerciser. Ann and her husband, Jim Haney, are Titans season ticket holders and can be found screaming "defense!!" in the north end zone at home games.
